Baltimore, Maryland – March 29, 2006 – This month, at their annual convention in Ponte Vedra, Florida, the Modular Building Institute (MBI) acknowledged Williams Scotsman with four Awards of Distinction for modular projects completed in 2005. "We're proud to accept these Awards of Distinction from our industry trade association. As a leading provider of modular space, Williams Scotsman strives for excellence in all facets of our business, especially product design and innovation, effectiveness, and customer satisfaction and utility," commented Michele Cunningham, Vice President of Marketing and Business Development for Williams Scotsman.

The Modular Building Institute (www.mbinet.org) is the trade association representing the manufacturers, dealers, and suppliers of the commercial factory-built structures industry. Commercial modular building manufacturers and dealers represent an annual multi-billion dollar industry. From classrooms to airport terminals, dormitories to weigh stations, emergency rooms to restaurants, MBI member companies manufacture, install, service and lease every conceivable type of building, both temporary and permanent.

The commercial building awards, judged by an impartial panel of experts, were based on the following four criteria: architectural excellence, technical innovation, cost effectiveness/energy efficiency, and calendar days to complete. Projects had to be intended as commercial structures, and all had to be of modular construction. Marketing piece awards were based on objectives, communication, and creativity.
