Williams Scotsman Appoints Daniel R. Stuart to Vice President of Information Technology

Baltimore, MD – March 17, 2005 - Williams Scotsman has announced the appointment of Daniel R. Stuart to Vice President of Information Technology. In this role, Stuart will oversee global IT operations including strategic planning and implementation, investments and budgets, security policies, and results-driven technology programs.

“Dan possesses a wealth of business and technology experience and will be an excellent complement to our Senior Management team. We are confident that his expertise will contribute greatly to the aggressive goals we have set for the company this year,” stated Bill LeBuhn, Senior Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer for Williams Scotsman.

“Williams Scotsman has built a strong reputation for investing in its people, its customers, its products, and its technology. I am excited to become part of this tradition and I look forward to making lasting contributions,” said Stuart.

Prior to joining Williams Scotsman, Stuart served as Director of Information Services for Mantiwoc Crane Group-Americas, where he was responsible for coordinating global IS strategy for the entire Crane Group and managing IS activities across regional business lines. His areas of expertise include ERP programs, strategic planning and fiscal responsibility for multi-million dollar IT departments. Stuart holds a B.S. degree in Computer Science from Albright College and an M.B.A. from the University of Maryland.
